Ready- Set- Solve program info and presentation from CRD the week after next?

Ready, Set, Solve is a program hosted by the Capital Regional District (CRD), with support from BC Hydro that matches teams of students with organizations to solve local sustainability challenges. The program offers a chance for post-secondary students to gain practical experience while supporting organizations that are taking action on climate change.

IMPACT! Training brief presentation (5-10 min) from Selina

- Selina met a girl she knew from camp, and she learned a lot from the workshop
- People were mostly from UBC and SFU
- Common energy has 7 SUB groups

UVSP Fall 2015 (Sep- Dec)

- UBC currently has eco-to-go for to-go containers, but it isn't going very well, so the new travel mug is each coffee shop will have 10-15 travel mugs. And it goes by a membership card.
- We were previously in contact with common energy
- Food services won't be on board with them
- They are for sure doing 70 mugs in their SUB to start with.
- We are collaborating with Camosun with our cross-pollination campaigns for use your own mugs and water bottles.
- Someone started a plastics for change- taking old fishing nets and made them into skateboards.
- People who were there were in Urban agriculture, engineer, architecture,

UVic Food services unfortunately are not on board with the mug share program, and the SUB does not have the capacity as of now to work on the project.

Leat went to the IMPACT! Training in London ON in October
